2017 Statement of Primary Source Verification

The National Register of Health Service Psychologists (National Register) conducts primary source verification of education (doctoral degree in psychology) and training (supervised internship and postdoctoral experiences) at the time of the psychologists' application and verifies specialty board certification at least annually with the applicable specialty board. The National Register also verifies licensure at the time of application and monitors the licensure status and ethical conduct of each health service psychologist as long as the psychologist holds the National Register Health Service Psychologist (HSP) credential.

The primary source credentialing documentation is reflected on www.NationalRegisterPro.org, which is owned and operated by the National Register of Health Service Psychologists. If you have questions about this statement, please contact Andrew Boucher by phone at 202-783-7663 or by email at andrew@nationalregister.org.
